Subventions To Allow Coal Competition

(From The Herald's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — The government's new subvention rate, 65 cents per ton higher, should allow steam coal from the foothills of Alberta to compete successfully for the fuel needs of Northwestern Ontario, Mines Minister George Prudham told the House of Commons Thursday night.

The pulp and paper industry of Northern Ontario is a heavy user of steam coal and the federal coal board has been doing educational work ever since the war in an effort to sell the idea of Alberta coal. At the same time the coal board has been lecturing the Western coal mine operators on the necessity for quality.

The government is now, according to Mr. Prudham, reflecting both these objectives in its subvention policy. It is raising the subvention but at the same time eliminating the lower grade coals from eligibility.

Coals in grade 5 have been completely removed and strip mining operations which includes coal produced in the Drumheller Valley have been declared ineligible. Behind these measures is an effort to co-ordinate federal policy with the new marketing legislation of the Alberta government.

A federal minister of mines literally gets it from both sides when his estimates come up for consideration in the house, and Mr. Prudham's experience last night, was no exception. The House adjourned with the debate uncompleted but he had been under attack by both C.C.F. and Progressive Conservatives in Nova Scotia while Rev. E. G. Hansell (MacLeod) waged the attack for the Alberta Social Crediters.

Mr. Hansell charged that the coal board's five point program to assist Canadian mining had fallen down on every point. He charged that Mr. Prudham was not only doing nothing about it but refusing to face the facts himself or allow them to be known to others.

The minister admitted that the picture for Western coal was not bright but he held out some hope for the future. The Canadian Pacific Railway was still burning Canadian coal and providing a market for 1,500,000 tons. As a result the Crownst Pass mines, while facing stiff competition still had a basic market.

One of the great handicaps to marketing of Western coal, Mr. Prudham pointed out, was the lack of any central selling agency. "I am happy to learn," he added, ed, "that coal operators in the West are now in the process of setting up such a selling agency. This agency would have the responsibility of marketing the bulk of the Western coal shipped to Central Canada. By this arrangement coal will be sold in grade, possibly under trade marks and customers enabled to buy with confidence.

"Another encouraging feature of the marketing problem," he continued, "is that Alberta and British Columbia coal mining companies have been successful in negotiating a five-year stabilized freight rate with both railways. This will enable the mines to proceed with marketing arrangements with a degree of stability and confidence that has been lacking heretofore."

Council Sits In Regular Session

Coleman Council sat in regular session Tuesday night, hearing a report on the meeting with the assessors by Mayor Abousafy.

The purchase of a new mixer for cement and asphalt work in town was approved and the decision reached that the water pipe at the cemetery should be extended to provide for better service.

The Court of Revision was set for 7 p.m. July 20, with Mayor Abousafy and councillors Dibbet, Jenkins, Wavrean and Toppano comprising the board.

Bylaw 267 setting the business tax mill rate received its final reading.

Bylaw 266, the building bylaw, received its second and third readings and now goes to the Minister for approval, there being no complaints registered in the time limit allowed.

CIVIL DEFENCE AGAINST ANY DISASTER

By having a group of trained citizens, who will know exactly what to do in case of emergency, any city, town or community has a form of insurance that can be put to account in any disaster, natural or man-made. Persons trained to deal with the results of bombing, fire or flood can help to prevent the chaos that might ensue. When civil defence is organized in any area, the good citizen answers the call for volunteers and, because of his training, becomes an even better citizen.

PRUDHAM AND LOW TANGLE BITTERLY DEBATE POLICY ON FUEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Mines Minister Prudham and Solon Low, Social Credit leader, Friday traded charges that the troubles of the coal mines are being used to make political capital.

Mr. Low accused Mr. Prudham, Alberta's representative in the cabinet, of getting into the political gutter to vent his spleen on the Social Credit government of Premier Manning in Alberta and Social Credit members of Parliament.

EVADING ISSUES

Mr. Prudham said Mr. Manning and Social Crediters are trying to shift the responsibility for coal development to the shoulders of the federal government by a clamor for a national fuel policy. As millions rolled in from oil and natural gas, Alberta's tune was that this development was purely a provincial matter.

The exchange concluded a debate on the problems of the coal mines begun Thursday.

Replying to demands for a national fuel policy, Mr. Prudham said the government has had such a policy with respect to coal for 26 years. It was to subsidize movement of coal to market so it could compete with United States coal in the Canadian market.

A research program and loans for mechanization of mines supplemented it. Concerning natural gas, the policy was to ensure its use in Canada, if economical, and permitting export later.

Export of electric power was rigidly controlled and research was well advanced aimed at producing electric power using atomic fuels.

PASSING THE BUCK

"It is all very well for Premier Manning and the Social Credit members from Alberta to try to 'pass the buck' to this government by making vague statements that we should have a national fuel policy," Mr. Prudham said.

He said press reports of Premier Manning's announcement of a $100,000 fund for rehabilitation of miners quoted the Alberta premier as saying "the only cure for this problem was a national fuel policy."

Since 1935, the Alberta government received from coal fees, rentals and royalties more than $8,000,000. Federal freight subventions in that period totalled $16,300,000 plus wartime payments and production subsidies of $5,800,000. Now the Alberta government offered a $100,000 rehabilitation fund.

He said property, civil rights and national resources are provincial responsibilities.

ASSAILS MINISTER

Speaking later, Mr. Low said Mr. Prudham has indulged in provocative statements of a cheap, political nature. He had singled out Social Credit members although members of other parties had used adoption of a national fuel policy.

He criticized the Social Credit members "because he 'Mr. Prudham' carries around a political chip on his shoulder all the time. He seems to feel that he has enemies around here."

The federal government had a responsibility for coal development. It was asking Parliament for $10,365,000 to administer a coal policy. But Mr. Prudham took "political umbrage in our demanding a sight of that policy."

"I point out to the minister that the province of Alberta is not attempting to side-step its responsibility or to throw it off on him or anybody else," Mr. Low said. "But we do ask that when the people of Canada put up several million dollars to administer a fuel policy that they be given that policy."

"That is the whole story. We feel that we have a right to ask for it and that he has no excuse for dragging it into the gutter of politics."

Mr. Prudham interjected: "down to your level."

Undiscovered Friend (by John Ewing)

When you go walking down a street,
No matter whom you chance to meet,

No matter if he's tall or slim,
No matter if he's Joe or Jim,
No matter if he's rich or poor,
No matter if he thinks the cure
To certain problems of the day
Is not the cure that you would say,

No matter what his race may be,
Remember only this, that he
Who is to you a stranger yet,
Is just a friend you've never met.

Our READERS Say

The Editor,
The Coleman Journal,
Coleman, Alta.

Dear Sir:

Taxes! Taxes! Taxes! The bane of all home-owners.

May I state before I proceed with my letter the usual "All names used herein are fictitious, etc."

John Jones invested in a home. Having paid rent for a number of years he desired something he could call his own. It was nothing spectacular as far as homes go, rather dilapidated in fact, but still his own.

Being an ambitious and energetic soul he decided he should be able to do a lot to make it look worthwhile. (I might add that the taxes paid by the previous owner were no more than those of a neighbor whom we shall introduce later).

He looked at his yard, now covered with a golden carpet of what are commonly called dandelions. "They will have to go," he thought.

So with gun in hand, spray that is, he launched his attack: reminiscent of his army days.

Soon not a dandelion was in sight. Ah, there was one good job done.

Now, what else? Oh yes, sidewalks. No use tracking mud in year after year. He'd heard plenty of this from his good wife. Sidewalks it must be. Once these were completed it only seemed natural that there should be a nice lawn and garden.

Thus he slaved on until finally after a year or two he had a home he could be proud of. This took, needless to say, money as well as time.

Sidewalks, to keep the house cleaner; lawn to keep down the dust, and keep the children looking less like street urchins; siding and new shingles for warmth, a lovely garden,—except for those pesky dandelions whose seeds his neighbor so kindly let blow over the fence every year — all these he surveyed with the thrill of ownership.

Let's look at his neighbor—John Green. Every year he says "I should do something about this year, but, you know, I just don't have a 'green thumb'. My rheumatism doesn't help either," and so on.

Consequently nothing was done. The lot was still over-run with weeds, rubbish and heaven knows what — and of course, dandelions.

"Where are you going for your holidays?" he calls over to Jones, to which Jones replies "can't afford a holiday this year. Too much expense fixing up the old home, you know."

Green returns from his vacation as he does every year, happy and healthy looking with a lovely sun-tan from spending leisure hours at the beach. The dandelions meanwhile have seeded, and the gentle west wind has blown them over the fence. Jones, as busy as ever, blackened from the sun while holidaying in his back yard, with saw and hammer, is still at it.

He had read an article in the local paper about good citizenship — clean up your yard, paint your home, beautify your town. Being a good citizen this is exactly what he had been doing.

Then came the assessor. "Lovely place you have here. It's too bad your neighbor doesn't do the same." Jones glows with pride.

Next spring, the tax notices — "Well, how are your taxes, Jones?" inquires Green. "Mine are still the same."

Jones doesn't answer, but sits on his porch, glumly reading his notice. "Who wants to be a good citizen," he rants to himself. "Look at Green. What has he done to help beautify the town? Nothing! What a bank roll or sock full, wherever he keeps it — he must have. Vacations every year; always contented looking — a new car this year, too!"

"What, have I done? Oh, yes, beautified my home. But just look at these taxes!"

Is there any justice?

Knud P. Harboe

MONTREAL, Quebec — Knud Peter Harboe, of Denmark, is the winner of the $5,000 award in the McGill University International Calvert House Competition for the Canadian Home of Tomorrow. Selection of the Danish architect's design as the international championship house was announced last night (Friday) by the three-man jury which has been examining entries at McGill for the past week.

The Calvert House Canadian award for the best Canadian entry was won by Geoffrey E. Hacker, Winnipeg, Manitoba and the Calvert House European award was won by Gardner Ertman, Edinburgh, Scotland. Each of these awards carries a cash prize of $2,500.

Open to architects and students in Canada and western Europe, the International Calvert House Competition attracted world-wide attention and more than 1,600 contestants from a dozen European countries and nine Canadian provinces gave notice of their intention to compete. The judges finally considered more than 650 designs and selected 13 of this number for main prizes and honorable mentions.

Among the ten honorable mentions, each carrying a cash award of $300, were two Canadian, four English, and one each from Austria, Holland, Denmark and France. All the successful contestants were men. Canadian winners were Victor Prus, Brockville, Ontario, and George S. Abram and James B. Craig, of Willowdale, Ontario, who made a joint entry.

In announcing the competition awards, Prof. John Bland, director of the McGill University School of Architecture, also made public a statement by Prof. Gio Ponti, internationally-known architect, designer and editor, of Milan, Italy, and member of the competition jury. "The jury of the International Calvert House of Tomorrow was presented with an imposing number of drawings from about 650 architects from many countries," Prof. Ponti stated. "In consequence, the jury decided to examine the whole group and search for projects in which different values could be found, as could be expected in submissions from architects from so many different countries and with so many different points of view. This, they believed, would throw an interesting light both intellectually and conceptually upon the problem of the house of tomorrow in a country with as high a degree of social and technical civilization as modern Canada."

"Having regard to the evolving character of architecture, the jury considered the Calvert Competition and the cultural internationality it portrays, a popular episode that could have very important results. No house among those submitted could be said to be the Canadian House of Tomorrow, but many contain ideas that can be exceedingly influential."

"Many of the projects," Prof. Ponti added, "have a long, low appearance which is somehow in the nature of much of the Canadian landscape. Many of the projects display a fullness, sweetness and calmness which recall poetic notions cherished by people who derive their moral and spiritual traditions from noble origins, at the same time British and Latin."

"Those projects most distinguished by simplicity, seriousness, truthfulness, at the same time rigorous and polite, by a disciplined taste, having harmony in color, sure, yet delicate and lively, appeared from a study of the conditions to be in the aesthetic spirit of the competition."

"Nevertheless, other projects testify to further different and lively solutions arising from the fact that the competition is an episode in which ideas for the future could be presented, from all of which a lively development of domestic architecture in Canada might be derived. These cannot be limited to certain types but display a wealth of different solutions of great human and architectural significance."

"From an ideal and formative position, the jury has agreed that in the first category mentioned, the project that presents the most significant values architecturally, having an essential simplicity, a coherent form, impeccable taste, an ordered, intimate, calm, even austere, interpretation of family life and providing completely for the individual interests of members of a family, was presented by Knud Harboe of Denmark, to whom the International Calvert House Award was made."

"Besides this remarkable proposal, two other projects attracted the lively attention of the jury, one by Geoffrey Hacker of Winnipeg, the other by Gardner Ertman, of Edinburgh. To these two outstanding projects, the first on account of a special grace in the simplicity of the pleasant and ingenious plan, and the second because of the tasteful development of the expression of a quiet family life, the jury has recommended respectively, the Calvert House Canadian and European awards."

"In these distinguished projects the jury has recognized primarily a high degree of simplicity and style, a very human interpretation of the life of a family in both moral and spiritual terms which first, while in the other two it is given by a brave confidence with life outside, more lively in one and more calm in the other."

Honorable mention awards, other than those in Canada were: Jean-Louis Lalonde, Paris, France; Hans Scasny, Vienna, Austria; Jelle Abma, Amsterdam, Netherlands; Eric Duff, (England) now studying at Harvard University, Boston; Thomas Baron Gourlay, London, England; Richard S. Soderlind, Denmark; Geoffrey Michael Fullman, Berkshire, England, and John Donald Cordwell, (England)

Figures of the construction crew indicate the size of the map. Exhibition dates this year are August 25 - September 6, but the B. C. Building will be opened free all year round. George Challenger, Vancouver, cartographer and builder of the map, is at the top, centre, kneeling; on the location of Vancouver; Mario Crema, PNE carpenter, is working on the north end of Vancouver Island, right. At lower left, Bob Challenger, who assisted his father, is standing at Prince George; above him is Bill Napier, PNE carpenter, at Kamloops and at top left, Ernie Hanock, also a PNE carpenter, is at Kelowna. The centre strip is in its permanent location and the east and west portions will be fitted to the centre. Stacked against the wall, left, are portions of Alberta ready for placing. A work area beneath map permits fitting and servicing.

BLAIRMORE — Main item on the agenda of the Blairmore town council meeting Monday night was a discussion on the repair work to be done to the Blairmore dam, commencing next week. Since a report from Councillor Tom Gibos that the water in the supplementary dam, which is to be used while the main dam is being repaired, is low, it was suggested that engineers Haddon, Davis and Brown of Calgary, or contacted in regard to sending an engineer to Blairmore to try to find some means whereby Blairmore would have a supply of water while repair work is being done.

The town secretary was advised to contract the contractors with view to having the engineer visit Blairmore prior to moving in their equipment.

The town garbage collector was present requesting that council suggest that ratepayers build ash containers to facilitate his work and keep ashes from freezing in winter time. ## RCAF Recruiting Unit Working Across Canada

The trans-Pacific airlift operation that the RCAF has been carrying out for almost four years in support of the United Nations effort in Korea is to finish shortly. A decision to end RCAF participation in the airlift has been made and it is expected that the final RCAF round trip to Japan will be made by a North Star leaving its home base at Dorval, outside Montreal, on Saturday, May 29.

Requirement for air transport of the UN operations in Korea has decreased and there has been a lessening of the overall airlift operations over the northern route. In consequence, the United States Air Force is reducing its facilities at Shemya Air Force Base, in the Aleutians, which the RCAF North Stars have been using as a refuelling point. Unavailability of Shemya would make economic operation of the RCAF North Stars uneconomical in this run. Because of this, and the decreased requirement, the RCAF operation is being brought to an end.

Canadian Pacific Airlines will continue, for the time being at least, to operate its scheduled airlift flights to Korea, under charter to the Canadian government, as part of the Canadian contribution towards the UN effort in Korea. Operating with DC-6 aircraft having a longer range than the RCAF North Stars, CPA can continue to operate over the route without utilizing Shemya as a refuelling point. CPA is currently flying 3½ round trips per week on the Korea airlift, between Vancouver and Japan, having begun its charter operations shortly after the RCAF.

The RCAF began its part in the Korea airlift on July 27, 1950. No. 426 Squadron, acting on very short notice, flew out to McChord Air Force Base, outside Tacoma, in the State of Washington. It took with it its ground crew, administrative staff and ground servicing equipment.

The first North Star took off from McChord the evening of July 27, 1950, to begin the operation. The squadron went through a hectic period at first, maintaining a flight-day schedule with six aircraft on strength. The aircraft total was increased shortly afterwards, although the schedule still called for the maximum from personnel and equipment. This was during the early days of the airlift, when the situation in Korea called for a maximum effort to rush urgently needed supplies and equipment to the hard-pressed UN forces there.

As requirements eased the schedule was reduced to 15 round trips per month, and for the last year or so has stood at 8 round trips per month.

For the first year of its airlift operations the squadron was located at McChord Field. It then moved back to its normal home base at Dorval and has since continued to carry out its Korea airlifts. The cross-Canada portion of such flights has been utilized for domestic RCAF requirements and the aircraft have proceeded on to McChord from Vancouver, to take on their cargo for the trans-Pacific run.

While doing this, the squadron has carried out many other important commitments. These have included scheduled supply runs into the Arctic and the commencement of a scheduled trans-Atlantic service in support of the RCAF's Air Division in addition to numerous other special flights.

The Thunderbird Squadron has made more than 600 round-trips—1200 Pacific crossings—and has flown more than 13,000 personnel, including many wounded. It has carried approximately 7,000,000 lbs. of freight and mail and has chalked up 34,000 flying hours.

Most of 426 Squadron's flying during the airlift has been over the northern Pacific route, although some of the trips were made by way of the mid-Pacific through Hawaii and San Francisco, and on up to McChord.

Ground crew detachments have served at points along the route since the airlift started, to enable speedy and efficient servicing of the Merlin-powered North Stars. In addition to the Aleutians, such as in Japan and at Honolulu, detachments have served at Haas as well as at McChord Field.

The record set by 426 Squadron during its airlift operations is one of which the RCAF and all Canada can be proud. Its reputation for efficiency and safety was unsurpassed. Not a single lift and not a single cargo was lost during the four years of operations.

The job represented a valuable and urgently required Canadian contribution to the case in Korea. It was a gruelling job calling for the maximum from all those who took part, and this maximum was always forthcoming under some of the world's worst flying conditions.

The RCAF North Stars which carry the blue and white United Nations emblem on their tail, indicating service on the airlift, are emblematic of a splendid service, in line with the very finest traditions of the Air Force.

To all of those who have taken part in the RCAF's operations on the airlift I pass my personal congratulations for a demanding task done in proper Air Force fashion. I can give no higher praise than this.

Golf Tourney For Blind Golfers Set For Toronto

Now that the long sun beats down on neighborhood golf courses, Canadian blind golfers are stepping up their practice in training for the International Blind Golfers Team Championships, which are to be played at the Lamson Golf and Country Club, Toronto, July 21-23 inclusive.

Teams composed solely of blind golfers will represent Canada and the United States in this first international team championship competition, which is being sponsored jointly by the Royal Canadian Golf Association and the House of Seagram. Each team will consist of seven players (six and an alternate) and in completing the 36 holes of tournament play the blind golfers will be competing simultaneously in three separate contests.

The lowest scores for each country will be tallied to decide the International Blind Golfers Team Championship. The same individual scores will be entered in competitions for separate International and Canadian Individual Blind Golfers Championships.

The international competition has the blessing of the Canadian Blind Golfers Association and its U.S. counterpart. Both these organizations have a voice in selecting team members to represent the two countries.

Members of the Canadian team will be announced June 21 on the basis of inter-club competition now going on. Selections for the American team will not be announced until a few days before the international tournament.

Despite their formidable handicap, several of the Canadian and American players have recently gone around 18 holes with scores ranging from 105 to 112, and two or three have been known to break the hundred.

Because the three trophies and all tournament expenses are being met by the House of Seagram, gross proceeds from public sale of tickets will be donated to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Point of interest during the recent western tour of CBC's director of programs, Charles Jennings, was nearly completed British Empire Games stadium. Mr. Jennings is chairman of the CBC's Inter-Divisional Committee for the B.E.G. He is shown visiting the site with Jack McCabe (right) co-ordinator of B.E.G. coverage for the Corporation.

The B.E.G. expects to supply radio and television coverage to 25 participating countries as well as to the Canadian public.

Selling By Advertising

(Reprinted from Times-Review Fort Erie Ontario, Canada)

Many local retailers and other businessmen were in attendance at the first "Advertising Night" of the Greater Fort Erie Chamber of Commerce here Tuesday.

The guest speaker, Robert B. Adam, president of Adam, Meldrum & Anderson Co. of Buffalo, offered some valuable advice on merchandising derived from his experience as head of a large department store.

During the question and answer period he freely replied to various queries and what impressed us mostly was his stressing of advertising... that of getting a good product and then telling the people about it.

He reported that his firm allocates five per cent of its sales towards advertising of which three per cent goes into newspapers, one per cent dividend among radio, television, and direct mail advertising, and the remaining one per cent in maintaining its own advertising department.

He emphasized that newspapers still remain the No. 1 medium of advertising for merchants and predicted they will continue to lead.

Without wishing to minimize the value of radio and television in product selling, we can certainly concur with Mr. Adam. The impact of the printed word intelligently applied in regular newspaper advertising has been proven.

VETERAN NEWS COMMENTATOR

A boyhood ambition was realized the first day Frank Herbert took his place before a C.B.C. microphone. At the age of seventeen, Herbert had decided to become a radio announcer due to, as he put it, "the prospect of being paid merely for talking." In the years that followed, he found that there was more to announcing than he first presumed, and it was only after he had studied speaking in his spare time that he reached his goal. Since 1943 he has been featured regularly as a newscaster and commentator on C.B.C. networks.

THE FRESHER THE BETTER

One of the chief values in fresh vegetables is the fact that, being really fresh, their vitamin content is at its best. Prolonged storage of the more perishable vegetables, such as cabbage, spinach or lettuce, destroys much of their nutritive value. Too long cooking or soaking also causes wastage of their minerals. Vegetables should be washed quickly and cooked in a minimum of water in the minimum of time. Any water left from boiling vegetables can be used to enrich soups, gravies or stews.

Father Sullivan To Be Honored at Luncheon

A Farewell Luncheon will be held in the Catholic Hall Saturday, July 3rd at 7 p.m. for the very Rev. Dean L. Sullivan.

BLAIRMORE — Most Rev. F. P. Carroll, DD, Bishop of Calgary, has announced the opening of two new RC parishes in the city of Calgary, one to be known as Holy Name, in the Killarney District, and another, St. Pius X, on the Banff trail. Holy Name Church is to have for its pastor, Very Rev. L. Sullivan, VP, formerly of the Holy Ghost Church in Coleman, and St. Pius X Church will be under the pastoral care of the Rev. B. Holland, former pastor of St. Cyril's, Bellevue, and St. Theresa of Hillcrest.

Meanwhile, the Rev. A. E. Anderson, pastor of St. Anne's Catholic Church in Blairmore, has been appointed to succeed as Dean the Very Rev. Sullivan and the Deanery will have its headquarters at Blairmore as formerly. To replace Father Sullivan at Coleman, Bishop Carroll has appointed Father Maurice McGreevey, now at Empress, and to replace Father Holland at Bellevue will be Father Lawrence Carroll of Drumheller.

LONG SERVICE

Very Rev. Dean Sullivan has served with distinction in the Diocese of Calgary for a period of 27 years. He studied at St. Dunstan's University in his native Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, and his Theological Course was pursued in St. Augustine's Seminary in Toronto. Ordained in Charlottetown on July 3, 1927, he came to the Diocese of Calgary in the fall of the same year and was first appointed to Empress. From 1936 to 1940 Father Sullivan was parish priest of St. Joseph's, Cowley, and its mission churches. His work in these parishes received recognition in the appointment to the Holy Ghost Church in Coleman, where he labored with zeal for almost 15 years. On the appointment of Most Rev. M. A. Harrington, D.D., the present

Bishop of Kamloops, to the newly established parish of St. Basil's in Lethbridge, Father Sullivan was made Dean of the Blairmore Deanery. This was in 1950. The parish buildings in Coleman have all been tastefully redecorated by Dean Sullivan and the church was enlarged to twice its capacity. A fluent speaker, Dean Sullivan was in frequent demand at various church functions, not only in the Blairmore Deanery, but throughout the diocese.

Rev. Father Holland took his FATHER HOLLAND course in St. Michael's College in Toronto and his philosophical and theological studies in St. Augustine's Seminary in Toronto. Ordained to the priesthood in St. Michael's Cathedral on June 10, 1933, he came first to Empress, where he served as assistant to Father Sullivan, going from there to Munson, also as assistant. In 1934 he was appointed to the staff of St. Mary's Cathedral, Calgary, where he served as assistant for six years. Also during that time he was chaplain of the Holy Cross Hospital in Calgary. His interests in hospital work led to his appointment in an advisory capacity in the Calgary diocese and he did great work in furthering the interests and advancement of Catholic hospitals.

In 1940 Father Holland was appointed parish priest of Canmore and Exshaw, and his ten years of office in that parish were most successful in every aspect of parish administration.

Appointed to Bellevue in 1950, he has in his short tenure of pastorate renovated both churches and decorated them as well as purchasing a new parish rectory. Father Holland has always been interested in youth and for many years has been a chaplain of the Catholic Federation, serving on the Diocesan Board of this organization as well as being on the teaching staff of the CYP Dandelion College, held in the School of Fine Arts at Banff every year. Father Holland will assume charge of the newly formed parish of St. Pius X in Calgary.

Murals For New C.P.R. Scenic Cars

MONTREAL, May 20 — Paintings of the unspoiled beauty of Canada's national and provincial parks, portrayed in original murals by 18 of Canada's leading artists, will form this country's first art gallery on wheels.

The murals, depicting Canadian scenery from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, have been sponsored by the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts for installation in the "Mural Lounges" of 18 "Scenic Dome" lounge cars shortly to be delivered to the Canadian Pacific for its transcontinental service, as part of its order for 173 streamliner, stainless steel passenger cars. Robert W. Pilot,

R.C.A. of Montreal, president of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts, supervised the arrangements between the railway and the artists and has painted one of the murals himself.

This travelling art exhibit, the only one of its kind ever developed by a Canadian company, will be on show this summer when Canada's first "scenic dome" cars commence operation between eastern and western Canada. This art presentation, itself an entirely new departure in train decoration, will be enjoyed every day by hundreds of passengers on the trains across Canada. The murals, a source of pride to Canadians, will demonstrate to visitors the position of the arts in Canada.

In addition, the Canadian decorative theme in these cars will include park flowers artistically portrayed in glass etchings and colored carved linoleum. Each of the "scenic dome" lounge cars which feature the murals will be named after the park which is portrayed.

Seven of the artists whose work will be exhibited in this portable, yet permanent, collection, come from the Montreal area, while another seven are from Toronto and vicinity, two are from British Columbia and one each from Alberta and New Brunswick.

Eight of the parks depicted are in British Columbia. Two are in Alberta and one each in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Two are in Ontario and Quebec and one each in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Close to 400,000 people work in woods and mills in order to produce Canada's pulp and paper.

From a fifth of the annual wood consumption — no more than is taken by fire, insects and disease — the pulp and paper mills alone create more national income than all the other forest industries.

Every member of the Canadian Red Cross Corps is a volunteer. In 1953 members of the Corps devoted more than a hundred thousand hours to Red Cross work. The pulp and paper industry of Canada spends $200 million on transportation every year.
